Brantôme, Pierre de Bourdeilles, seigneur de. 1920 B71

Memoires, contenant les vies des hommes illustres et grands capitaines étrangers de son tems. 2v. 1739.

Brantôme (c. 1540–1614) was a French soldier and courtier.

"The great merit of Brantôme lies in the extraordinary vividness of his powers of literary presentment...His irregular, brightly coloured, and easily flowing manner, represents, as hardly any age has ever been represented, the characteristics of the great society of his time...[His] unquestioning acceptance of, and belief in, the moral standards of his own society, give a genuineness and a freshness to his work which are very rare in literature. Few writers, again, have had the knack of hitting off character, superficially it is true, yet with sufficient distinction, which Brantôme has." Saintsbury's Short history of French literature.

Brantôme, Pierre de Bourdeilles, seigneur de. 1920 B71m

Memoires, contenant les vies des hommes illustres et grands capitaines françois de son tems. 4v. 1739.

"Indifferent to honor and morality, he is an impartial witness to the vice and crime of his epoch. None has mirrored more truly the Valois court or its moral ideas." New international encyclopædia.

Reminiscences of some of the earlier members of a famous literary society of Cambridge University, humorously dubbed the "Apostles" because its membership was limited to 12. It was in its prime between 1824 and 1840, and has numbered among its members some of the most distinguished Englishmen of the century. Henry Sidgwick was a prominent "Apostle" and in the recently published memoir of his life (92 S5682) there are many interesting allusions to the society.

Far reaching comparative and scientific study of the origin, motives, ideals and psychological importance of the autobiography. Eight hundred biographies in Latin, French, German, English and Italian have furnished the groundwork for investigations of the "obscure and important questions of the subjective tendency in private history, of the standards of sincerity, and of the relative value of the deliberate self-study and the unconscious self-revelation."

"The forming of this famous portrait-gallery had been one of the Chancellor's magnificent passions...The quality of the collection was more remarkable than its number: for it was not made at haphazard, but selected by design, under the eye of one by whom all that was eminent in English story was thoroughly known and appreciated, and comprised what he considered the élite of the nation during the most stirring years of all its annals, from the Armada to the Restoration." Edinburgh review, 1852.

The portraits themselves are not reproduced.

The author, 25th earl of Crawford and 8th earl of Balcarres, was well versed in the history and genealogy of this ancient Scottish family.

"To a Norman gentleman, M. Toustain de Richebourg, our chronicler is indebted for many of his archæological materials; while abundance of lighter matter, concerning more modern times and persons, has been gathered from journals, diaries, and memorials kept by the Lindsays...It is by no means a constant fact that every heraldic painter shall execute his labour of love and reverence with so much sincerity, delicacy and patience as Lord Lindsay has. He has given us a book which Scott would have delighted to honour." Athenæum, 1849.

Morritt of Rokeby. — The Abbotsford household: Sir Adam Fergusson; Willie Laidlaw; Tom Purdie.—Scott's relation to other poets: Campbell; Crabbe; Moore; Lord Byron; Wordsworth and Southey.

Its charm for the most part is that it brings us into familiar friendship with a host of old Scottish ladies, Edinburgh advocates, antiquarian lairds, and great folk whom we had learned to know a little in Lockhart and other writers of memoirs. Some of the material is from printed sources, but a great deal of it Miss Maccunn has drawn from stores of unpublished correspondence. Beyond its burden of entertainment the chief merit of the book is the light it throws on the genesis of Scott's poems and novels. Condensed from Nation, 1910.

"Interesting selection of intimate letters, which covers the lives of Cosimo, Piero, and Lorenzo. She has taken her material not merely from the well-known printed sources, but also from those many little volumes issued privately in honour of the marriage of a friend—in accordance with a graceful Italian custom which has successfully prevented quantities of valuable material from being of use to any but the few—and above all from the Medici archives in Florence. Consequently much of the contents of the present volume is altogether new... The majority of the letters are political." Athenæum, 1910.

Young, George Frederick. 920 Y37
The Medici. 2v. 1909. Dutton.
"Authorities consulted," v.1, p.15–17.
This work saps the foundations of many a time-honored misconception built upon stories that cannot bear critical examination. The author places before us the results of the most recent research, impartially sifting the evidence as he goes; it is we who draw the inevitable conclusions. In the course of his survey he conscientiously examines the life of each member of the Medici family whose name has come down to posterity. The work accordingly comprises more than a hundred biographical sketches of members of the house of Medici, beginning with its founder Giovanni di Bicci, and ending with the electress Anna Maria Ludovica; while the connected subjects upon which it throws light are of the most varied character. Condensed from Athenæum, 1909.

Birch, Walter De Gray. qr929.8 B48

Seals. [1907.] Methuen. (Connoisseur's library.)

"This book on seals is less useful than we could wish...Except for ten pages at the beginning, the work is devoted to the seals of the middle ages and later times. There is no mention of the seals...of the remote East...nothing about the engraved gems of Greek and Greco-Roman antiquity...Dr. Birch is known as a trustworthy guide...and yet we must conclude that the vast deal of interesting information in this...work is limited in range and hardly made accessible." Nation, 1908.

Aldrich, Thomas Bailey. 92 A365g

Greenslet, Ferris. Life of Thomas Bailey Aldrich. 1908. Houghton.

"Bibliography," p.261–292.

Mr Greenslet has brought to his work delicacy and reticence, together with a skill in words that reproduces something of the charm of one who made refinement the end of all his labor. He tells just enough of the child's surroundings at Portsmouth, of the clerk and youthful editor in New York; he follows the man sympathetically through his Boston years of prosperous toil and golden ease, to the honored close. It is a happy life gracefully told. Condensed from Nation, 1908.

Alison, Sir Archibald. 92 A413

Some account of my life and writings; an autobiography; ed. by Lady Alison. 2v. 1883. Blackwood.

English historian (1792–1867).

"The last volume of his autobiography contains full details of many interviews with distinguished persons in London and elsewhere, his reception at the houses of the nobility, and his speeches at public dinners and meetings, together with speculations upon politics, human nature and criticism...On the whole, his accounts of distinguished men, though coloured by his prejudices, are sensible as far as they go. The book is amusingly characteristic of his even temper, calm conviction of his own merits, and confidence in his own predictions; but, like all autobiographies, is chiefly interesting in the earlier part." Dictionary of national biography.

Allingham, William, 1824–89. 92 A437

Diary; ed. by H. Allingham and D. Radford. 1907. Macmillan.

Allingham was an Irish poet. The interest of his diary depends little on his own literary achievements and much on the fame of his friends, the chief of whom were Tennyson and Carlyle. Rossetti and Browning are often mentioned and a host of lesser literary names. Allingham knew how to draw the best from his friends in conversation and we learn much of their characteristics from his pages.

[Bacon, Theodore.] Delia Bacon; a biographical sketch. 1888. Houghton.

Delia Bacon (1811–59) was an American author who zealously advocated the Baconian authorship of Shakespeare's plays. She lived for five years in England while making her researches. The story of her life is tragic, for her brilliant though unsound mind finally gave way under the strain of her delusion, but her biography has interest and value, if only for the glimpse it gives of her friends, Hawthorne, Carlyle and Emerson. The former was from first to last her faithful and devoted friend, and all three were her correspondents. Emerson served as her channel of communication with editors and publishers.

"Rich as it is in minor details and vivacious descriptions it adds but little to the common knowledge of [her] career. In fact, it is studiously reticent concerning many essential facts, including those of parentage and pedigree, about which the curious in such matters would like to be better informed...The monstrous egotism of the book greatly weakens the pleasurable impression created by its vivacity, its cleverness, and its abundance of interesting material." Nation, 1907.

Blackie (1809–95) was a Scottish philologist, for 30 years professor of Greek in the University of Edinburgh. The letters to his parents cover about two years and a half, while he was a student in Germany and Italy. The youthful letters are followed by others written ten years later to Miss Wyld, whom he afterward married. The rest of the correspondence, and the largest part, covers Blackie's married life, 1843–95. The letters are various in theme but uniform in their tone of steadily sustained cheerfulness. They contain references to nearly all the distinguished men of his time.

Letters; ed. by H. S. B. Beale. 2v. 1908. Duffield.

Written between 1869 and 1889, mostly to her children, they at first abound in domestic detail, but later reveal more clearly both her own and her husband's likeable personalities. The allusions to him and his more famous contemporaries are utterly free, and sometimes very intimate, evidently made without the slightest idea of publication.

Blake, William. 92 B528c

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith. William Blake. [1910.] Duckworth. (Popular library of art.)

"Contains much about Blake, but more about Mr. Chesterton and his views on life, poetry, and painting, with passing allusions to...other fascinating but irrelevant topics ...As a piece of controversial criticism it is good reading. For sympathetic insight and appreciation we must seek elsewhere." Saturday review, 1911.

Blake, William. 92 B528sy

Symons, Arthur. William Blake. 1907. Constable.

"List of books consulted," p.13–15.

Mr Symons has here gathered together and reprinted from the manuscripts, where possible, all the records of Blake's life from contemporary sources, down to the publication of Gilchrist's Life in 1863, but excluding the Letters and Tatham's Life. Among other things is a complete and exact transcription of the parts of Crabbe Robinson's Diary and reminiscences alluding to Blake. Mr Symons's own contribution to the work affords an admirable criticism of Blake as artist, poet and thinker and settles a number of disputed biographical points. Condensed from Nation, 1907.

The comtesse de Boigne (1781–1866) was a brilliant and attractive Frenchwoman whose salon, during the first half of the 19th century was frequented by many distinguished persons. Her vivacious memoirs throw many sidelights on events from the reign of Louis XVI to the revolution of 1848. Layard, George Somes. A great "Punch" editor; being the life, letters and diaries of Shirley Brooks. 1907. Pitman.

Brooks (1815–74) was from an early age a voluminous contributor to the press, besides writing a number of novels. In 1870 he assumed the editorship of "Punch." He was a great talker of the old sort; a tremendous writer, turning out jokes, poems, parliamentary reports, any kind of "copy," with incredible ease—a born journalist. His letters are of the kind that must have filled the recipient with joy, but that somehow in cold print, half a century later, sound forced and schoolboyish. Condensed from Nation, 1908.

More than half the book is occupied with the memoir of Brown (1844–78), who was a Philadelphia lawyer and orator of much ability and promise. His principal orations, which are here included, were historical in character.

Du Bois, William Edward Burghardt. John Brown. 1909. Jacobs. (American crisis biographies.)

"Bibliography," p.397–400.

Readable volume of appreciation, written from the point of view of the negro. Disappointing in that it betrays little original research and contains many inaccuracies, partly because the author has relied on his predecessors in the field. The last chapter is a notable discussion of the race question as it stands to-day in the light of John Brown's sacrifice.

Villard, Oswald Garrison. John Brown, 1800–1859; a biography 50 years after. 1910. Houghton.

No pains have been spared to produce a biography both accurate and complete. Author has traced Brown's life from day to day throughout the entire active period of his career, has gone minutely over the ground on which he operated, and tested every printed or verbal statement with the rigid thoroughness of a laboratory investigator. We have here a book, and the only book, in which the unquestioned facts of John Brown's career are completely exhibited. If the author's conclusions differ from the conclusions of others, he cannot be charged with either withholding or distorting the evidence upon which they are based. Condensed from Nation, 1910.

He has found his supreme interest in the education of statesmen, and he looks upon Mr Gerald Balfour and Lord Curzon, whom he taught, as works of his hand. His book is personal from beginning to end, but never self-important.

The letters are those of friends and are chiefly occupied with the personal affairs of the writers. The volume is of much interest if only as showing Browning's sympathetic nature and gift for friendship.

Griffin, W. Hall. Life of Robert Browning, with notices of his writings, his family & his friends; completed and ed. by H. C. Minchin. 1910. Macmillan.

"The late Professor Hall Griffin was an enthusiastic student of Browning, and had collected a large amount of biographical and illustrative material. Among other things, he discovered the diary of Alfred Domett; he visited and identified all Browning's homes, early and late; and his friendship with the Browning family and with some of Browning's closest friends gave him access to many unpublished sources of information ...Book is more than a thesaurus of facts. It is admirably written, and full of good sense and good judgment. It does not attempt to provide any elaborate critical apparatus, but such criticism as is given seems to us exceptionally balanced and sane. The book is primarily a biography, and in the second place a history of literary influences and the genesis of the poems." Spectator, 1910.

Butler, Sir William Francis. 92 B9792b

Sir William Butler; an autobiography. 1911. Constable.

Sir William Butler (1838–1910) was an Irish soldier who served under Lord Wolseley in Canada, in Ashanti, in Egypt and in South Africa. The most interesting part of the book is perhaps to be found in the last three chapters which relate to the South African war. Disapproving of the British management of the situation, just before the outbreak of hostilities he resigned his command and returned to England. The autobiography ends at this point but there is a brief supplementary chapter by his daughter. The book makes agreeable reading, both from the vigor of the narrative and from the frankness of the views expressed.

Cardano (1501–76) was an Italian mathematician, physician, astrologer and author, one of the most interesting characters connected with the revival of science in Europe. The work of Cardano's which retains most interest for this generation is his autobiography, "De vita propria." In its clearness and frankness of self-revelation it stands alone among records of its class and may be compared with the autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini. Professor Morley has ably condensed Cardano's autobiography and at the same time supplemented it by information from the general body of his writings and other sources.

Carlyle was a Scottish clergyman, an eloquent debater and skilful leader in the General Assembly.

"His 'Autobiography' gives a most agreeable impression of him as a genial, cultivated, liberal-minded, and sagacious minister of the kirk, who united to the breadth of the man of the world a sincere devotion to what he considered to be the true interests of his order, and it is unrivalled as a picture of the Edinburgh and Scotch society of his time." Dictionary of national biography.

Mr Conway's personal intercourse with Carlyle was long-continued and intimate and he has given evidently a faithful and trustworthy delineation of the man. The book is rich in anecdote and conversation, especially that relating to Carlyle's early life. The most interesting part is the correspondence, containing extracts from letters written by Carlyle to two college friends between the years 1814 and 1824, when Carlyle was a young tutor. There are also letters to Leigh Hunt and several other persons. Condensed from Dial, 1881.

By a friend and fellow-countryman of Carlyle. First published in 1881.

Masterly little biography; a picture deftly painted and pleasant, yet far above the mere art of the portrait-painter; appreciative to the verge of hero-worship, but stopping short at that point where hero-worship becomes idolatry:—a bit of work, indeed, which it would be hard to surpass for sympathy, delicacy, liberality of view, and wealth of friendly insight. Read, as it should be read, after the "Reminiscences," it purifies the memory of certain ignoble moods. Condensed from Contemporary review, 1881.

Catharine II, empress of Russia. 92 C279

Memoirs, with a preface by A. Herzen; tr. from the French. 1859. Appleton.

"As this work was not published until the outbreak of the Crimean War, the question of its genuineness was everywhere raised. From internal evidence it is now generally accepted as authentic; though it was long in the hands of Catherine's imperial successors, and the proof that it was not tampered with is not quite complete. The volume has to do almost exclusively with Catherine's early years. But it is a most extraordinary uncovering of Russian court life. The imbecility of Peter the Third, the dissimulation and ambition of his wife, the mixture of barbarism and brutality that everywhere prevailed, are nowhere else more graphically portrayed." Adams's Manual of historical literature.

"Godwin, while nominally writing a life of Chaucer, looked upon biography as nothing more than an entrance into the broader fields of social and political history, where it was permitted him to disport himself at will...He seemed, moreover, constitutionally incapable of sifting truth from error, and was especially inclined to...stating as true what he was anxious should be true...He added something specific to our knowledge of the poet by printing a few official documents which had never before been brought to light." Lounsbury's Studies in Chaucer.

"John—who was as exclusively known to his contemporaries by that name as he is to us by his complimentary title of Chrysostom or the 'golden-mouthed'—is one of the most splendid and interesting figures in the early history of the Church. Less profound a theologian than Athanasius, or Augustine, or Gregory of Nazianzus...less learned than Origen or Jerome; less practically successful than Ambrose, he yet combines so many brilliant gifts that he stands almost supreme among the Doctores Ecclesiae as an orator, as an exegete, as a great moral reformer, as a saint and confessor." Farrar's Lives of the Fathers.

Gilder, Richard Watson. Grover Cleveland; a record of friendship. 1910. Century.

"It has seemed to the writer not only an obligation of friendship but of patriotism to make some record of the personality of Mr. Cleveland, as revealed in an intimacy of many years. The large traits of his character, and those important public services which far transcended partisan accomplishment, have made their impress upon the American people and the world...Sympathetic speakers and writers have told much, also, of his characteristics and his daily walk, but the full portrait has not yet been rounded out. I desire merely to add a few intimate touches to that portrait, not thinking to complete it; but only to help loyally toward its completion." Introduction.

"The book is properly named. There is a preliminary sketch of Cleveland's life before he became a national figure, and hardly any really important event of his career goes entirely unmentioned: but the book is not a biography...Mr. Parker's...are not the only recollections the book contains. Others of Cleveland's friends have contributed to his store, and perhaps the most valuable of all are certain of Cleveland's own, given from time to time in conversation, dealing with some of the most interesting episodes of his career and with the best-known of his contemporaries. And yet, although thoroughly reminiscential, the book is not light and gossipy, or of a newspaper or magazine flavor, but a careful presentment of a great public character as seen by his intimates." Nation, 1909.

Most is told, naturally, of the Pre-Raphaelite group of painters, the promoters of the arts and crafts movement, and their friends, with whom he had most to do. Gen. Wilson was a warm personal friend of Dana's and his biography is naturally uncritical. "It is the most curious illustration in existence of the character of the servile place-hunters of the time, with unctuous professions of virtuous sentiment which serve to heighten the effect. Contains facsimile of title-page of original edition, London, 1651.

Intimate passages are rare, and as a rule the letters move in the peculiar field of generalization that makes most of the correspondences of his age neither quite literature nor quite familiar self-revelation. The letters that passed from man to man in those days were written not so much to acquaint the recipient with the details of the sender's life, as to foster the ideal of friendship, and it is with this understanding that we must approach Donne's letters. Mr Merrill's explanatory and historical notes show judgment and learning. Condensed from Nation, 1911.

Joseph Dudley (1647–1720) was a colonial governor of Massachusetts. Though an able administrator, he frequently antagonized the colonists by his arbitrary methods and has been unfavorably viewed by former historians. The present study is not intended to meet the criticisms of his character but rather to set forth the Stuart colonial policy and Dudley as its exponent.

Fessenden (1806–69) was one of the leaders of the Republican party through the antislavery struggle, the Civil war and reconstruction. The records of these events are found only in part in these volumes, but what is lacking in the way of history is more than made good by private letters and memoranda of the senator, giving us his inmost thoughts at critical periods and portraying his personality as no other hand could do. "He gives...authorities which show an extent of research, among printed and unprinted materials, for which...we were not prepared...The value of his labours can only be acknowledged by those who, by having studied this portion of our history, can estimate the skill with which he has compressed so much into so small a compass." North British review, 1847.

"The art of Birket Foster [1825–99] makes only a limited appeal to modern taste. It is somewhat smug and conventional; it is essentially mid-Victorian in its influence, and yet there is a quiet pastoral charm about his work which will insure it a permanent place in the English school of landscape-painters and illustrators of the later half of the nineteenth century." Outlook (London), 1907.

"The daughter of Thomas Crawford the sculptor, the sister of Marion Crawford, a kin on the mother's side to the Wards of New York and the Howes of Boston, allied by marriage with gentlefolk of England and Germany, Mrs. Hugh Fraser has had a most distinguished acquaintance. As a diplomatist's wife, she has travelled widely and lived in many lands. She gathers up not merely her personal reminiscences, but an enormous amount of material touched only by report. The record is not so much of her life as of her interests. A certain superciliousness in her literary manner hardly detracts from the charm of her narrative." Nation, 1911.

"Frénilly...while not a conspicuous figure in the history of the Revolution, was acquainted with those who were. He was a typical product of the privileged class of the old régime, a young man-about-town with no other purpose in life than to shine in society. His 'Recollections,' which were begun only in 1837, show a remarkably keen memory, particularly for small but picturesque details, but they are so deeply dyed in aristocratic prejudice that he would be a bold historian who would be willing to rest content with such a source for any incident which it recounts." Nation, 1909.

Martha, lady Giffard, her life and correspondence (1664–1722); ed. by J. G. Longe, with preface by [E. A.] Parry. 1911. Allen.

Lady Giffard was the sister of Sir William Temple, lived with him, accompanied him in his diplomatic missions and survived him for some years. As a letter-writer she does not shine in comparison with her sister-in-law, Dorothy Osborne, to whose "Letters" this volume is in a sense a sequel, but her letters give perhaps a wider view of the domestic and courtly life of the time, and they carry on the story of Sir William Temple's life which his wife's letters begin.

Gilman, Daniel Coit. 92 G421f

Franklin, Fabian. Life of Daniel Coit Gilman. 1910. Dodd.

Mr Gilman (1831–1908) scored more, and more various, successes than any other man who ever dealt with education in America. Others may have equaled him in the quality of their service, but none conducted so many important enterprises so successfully. Deeply associated with the organization of the Sheffield Scientific School at New Haven, with the upbuilding of the University of California, the foundation of Johns Hopkins University, and of its Medical School, he found energy at seventy to inaugurate the work of the Carnegie Institution, and in the last year of his life he practically gave shape to the Russell Sage Foundation for sociological and charitable investigation. In treating such a career, the biographer had no choice but to merge the hero in his causes. This Dr Franklin, a former Johns Hopkins colleague, has done, adding as a sort of supplement a selection from his intimate correspondence, and a brief sketch of his family life by Mrs Gilman. Dr Franklin has set forth with admirable orderliness and lucidity the chief activities of a varied and complicated life. Condensed from Nation, 1910.

In his life of Goethe, Lewes speaks of Goethe's mother as "one of the pleasantest figures in German literature." The letters are natural and delightful, full of pride in her famous son, warmth of affection and joyousness of spirit.

Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von. 92 G559d

Düntzer, Johann Heinrich Joseph. Goethes leben. 1883.

"A valuable contribution. But it will not supersede Lewes's book [Life and works of Goethe, 92 G559le]; it will be read with it...The book is not so much a biography as materials for a biography. Of the writer's industry in collecting and verifying his materials it is impossible to speak too highly, but of his skill in arranging them it is still less possible to speak politely...The other stumbling-block is the attitude of adoration Herr Düntzer assumes toward Goethe." Saturday review, 1884.

The countess of Granville [1806–68] was the daughter of the fifth duchess of Devonshire, famous for her beauty, and the wife of a diplomat who at various times represented England at the courts of St. Petersburg, The Hague and Paris.

"Her letters to her brother and sisters, written in all the freedom of confidential intercourse, are racy, graphic, humorous and instinct with good sense and right feeling ...[Their] greatest charm, however...is the pathos which underlies their mirth, and the true nobility of character which, in scenes little favourable to serious thought or delicate feeling, preserved Lady Granville throughout life wholly unspotted by the world ...The work forms an important and most agreeable addition to our knowledge of English society in the first half of the century." Saturday review, 1894.

Easy, informed and sympathetic, Mr Davey is rightly equipped for the task he set himself in writing of Lady Jane Grey. In his account of her nine days' sovereignty, her education and bringing-up, he corrects some errors of strange popularity, and in the introduction Mr Hume exposes the political situation in Europe and the social condition of England in such a way as to make intelligible much that would confuse the average man. The author of this fascinating book of reminiscence was born in England in 1848. The next year his father emigrated to America and settled in the Illinois country. There the sensitive and keenly observant boy grew to manhood. The thread of incident running through the first two-thirds of the book gives it somewhat the character of a novel, but the last chapters have slight connection with what has gone before. Three chapters are given to Fremont and his experiences, and there is an admirable description of the Lincoln-Douglas debate, and of the city of St. Louis about 1860. It is a matter of regret that a work which makes, in large part, so welcome an addition to autobiographical literature should not have been more consistently carried out. Condensed from Nation, 1909.

"Mr. Walter Sichel has utilised several new 'sources' for the life of Lady Hamilton. Some letters by her were not acquired by the British Museum until 1896 and were therefore unknown to earlier writers on the Neapolitan period of Nelson's life; and there can be no doubt that the author's treatment of the whole subject is far more complete and authoritative than that of Mr. Cordy Jeaffreson." English historical review, 1906.

Japanese letters; ed. with an introduction by Elizabeth Bisland. 1910. Houghton.

Contents: Letters to B. H. Chamberlain.—Letters to W. B. Mason.—Letters to Mrs Hearn.

"To those who still practice the moribund art of hobnobbing with books, of being intimate with them and running in on them for informal converse, the volume offers endless possibilities of intellectual stimulus and pleasant intercourse. Nine-tenths of the collection are letters to Basil Hall Chamberlain, the noted and devoted student of Japan and guide, philosopher and familiar mental crony of Hearn's Japanese years. In these letters Hearn has almost literally poured out his mind to his friend. The comments of a keen critic of literature and of life, the subtle characterizations of an intuitively sympathetic observer, the whimsies of a child-like and sensitive imagination, and the joyous discoveries and puzzled bewilderments of a delver into alien mysteries, all tumble over one another in the fine disarray of an untrammeled spontaneity and with the unsought perfection of trained faculties at play." Life, 1911.

Dr Gould approaches the subject from a novel point of view. He is an eye specialist, well known for a series of studies in which he has derived the eccentricities of various geniuses from faulty vision. In this respect Hearn, with his one eye intensely myopic, offered a tempting field which the oculist could not avoid. In the actual details of Hearn's life, Dr Gould presents not much that is new. The most valuable parts of the book are those in which Hearn's literary activities are traced. Besides a long and complete analysis of all his published works, with extracts from the reviews of the time, there is also a full bibliography, which includes even the manuscripts left by Hearn. Condensed from Nation, 1908.

v.1. Childhood and youth.—Student years.—Wander years.—In exile.
v.2. In exile (continued).—The living tomb.

Compilation from his published writings in prose and verse, arranged in such a way as to form a sort of biography. Does not present a complete and coherent life of the poet, and the unity of the narrative is disturbed by the disparity of style shown in the various extracts. These extracts are not held together by any thread of commentary and no explanatory notes are supplied in the English version. In spite of defects, however, it is a useful collection of material in convenient form.

"They cannot in fairness be ranked high in epistolary literature, but with the connecting bits of biography they give us some insight into an impressively though not winningly individual character, and furnish a sufficiently detailed account of a scholarly career more than creditable in its achievements and not lacking in heroic and pathetic features...We should be duly thankful for the glimpses we get of Swinburne, Burne-Jones, and other interesting men, and for some of Dr. Hill's frank utterances on literature and politics...There are a few capital sayings and anecdotes." Nation, 1907.

"The interest excited by the Memoirs of Prince Chlodwig zu Hohenlohe-Schillingsfürst has thrown into the background those of the general of artillery, Prince Kraft zu Hohenlohe-Ingelfingen, who belonged to an older branch of the same family...The work is valuable as a contribution to the history of Germany in the latter half of the nineteenth century, and especially as a record of events leading up to the establishment of the German empire." Nation, 1907.

When Bishop Huntington (1819–1904) first entered the ministry he was a Unitarian. Later his views changed and he became rector of an Episcopal church in Boston and from 1869 until his death he was bishop of Central New York. The memoir goes very little into the discussion of theological questions, but shows rather the man as his family and intimate friends knew him. The glimpses which one gets of his early life and later summers spent in Hadley, Massachusetts are particularly delightful.

"For both facts and conclusions he seems to rely chiefly on Parton, Buell, Sumner, Brown, and Colyar, excerpts from whose writings make up no small proportion of his book...His work is further open to objection as ill-proportioned, abounding in extreme staements, and uncritical—defects which quite outweigh the considerations that it is vivacious, rich in anecdote, and thoroughly readable." Outlook, 1906.

"Bibliography," p.315–322.

Sympathetic narrative of Jacqueline's stormy, melodramatic career. In spite of the author's wide reading and signal industry, the princess's personality remains somewhat shadowy, and the volume is more valuable as a consistent account of the methods by which Burgundian power was built up in the Netherlands. Many illustrations.

Jefferson, Thomas. 92 J2323d

Domestic life of Thomas Jefferson; comp. from family letters and reminiscences, by his great-granddaughter, S. N. Randolph. 1871. Harper.

"When the great collection of Jefferson's manuscripts was sold to the United States government, there was reserved a mass of papers which were deemed to be of such a private nature as to possess no value in the national archives, and to belong more properly to the family. These eventually came into the possession of Jefferson's great-granddaughter, and they form the raison d'être of this book. It possesses the merits and demerits which might be expected, the documents being of positive value, and the family recollections and traditions of distinct interest; but the book is faulty in method, being both ill-proportioned and disjointed. It is, therefore, far more valuable to the maker than to the reader of history." Larned's Literature of American history.

France, Anatole, (pseud. of Jacques Anatole Thibault). Life of Joan of Arc; a translation by Winifred Stephens. 2v. 1909.

While nowhere calling in question the sincerity of his heroine, M. France belittles the part she played in the public events of 1429–30. He attempts to explain away all the spiritual side of her history and represents the Maid as an heroic but weak creature, a visionary, whose illusions physical science can account for. He attempts to clear away the mystery that surrounds her life by advancing the theory that she acted under the advice of some unknown person.

Lord Kelvin (1824-1907), one of the very few men raised to the British peerage for purely scientific achievements, was professor of natural philosophy at Glasgow University from 1846 to 1899. The direct successor of Newton, he launched into the world the principle of conservation of energy, on which the whole fabric of modern physics was based. The world knows him best as the man who has shown how practically to measure electric and magnetic quantities, and has made it possible to link together distant continents by the electric telegraph.

"Full and authoritative account of his life and work. This biography was begun during the life of Lord Kelvin, and, in fact, had his coöperation; after his death, the original sketch was greatly extended by the materials furnished from his letters, diaries, and other documents put at the biographer's disposal. In addition to the abundant record thus available, Professor Thompson had the high privilege of being a personal friend of the great physicist. The result is a book which will appeal strongly not only to men of science, who have been eagerly awaiting it, but also to all those who have an interest in the thought of the nineteenth century." Nation, 1910.

La Farge, John. 92 L142c

Cortissoz, Royal. John La Farge; a memoir and a study. 1911. Houghton.

It should be said in praise and definition of Mr Cortissoz's adroit and sympathetic study that no opinion and no phrase in it would disappoint La Farge himself. It gives admirably the subtle and vivid thinker, the fastidious talker, the delightful man of the world, who was perhaps the greatest social figure in America of our time. Neither a record nor a criticism, but a character study. Aim is to make us hear and see the man; a knowledge of his works is presupposed and the delightful effect of the book depends precisely upon this limitation of the field. Condensed from Nation, 1911.

Hervey, Arthur. Franz Liszt and his music. 1911. Lane.

"Principal compositions," p.161–168; "Literary works," p.169–171; "Bibliography," p.173–176.

Mr Hervey has devoted the larger part of his book to a careful and very musicianly analysis of Liszt's chief works for piano, orchestra and voice, but in the brief account of Liszt's life he has been admirably successful in bringing out the nobility of his character. Condensed from Academy, 1911.

Liszt, Franz. 92 L738hu

Huneker, James Gibbons. Franz Liszt. 1911. Scribner.

Certain aspects of Liszt's life and art are studied without strict adherence to chronological sequence. The result, though it falls short of the author's original plan for an exhaustive biography, is admirable and the book gives a vivid impression of this many-sided musical genius, his career and the adulation which he received. There are 126 pages of extracts from the writings of men and women who have known Liszt, analyses of some of his most important compositions and numerous illustrations.

"As a lineal descendant of Locke's cousin and legatee, Lord King had in his possession an extremely valuable collection of documents, and in publishing portions of these he rendered an important service...These materials, however, only serve to illustrate some passages in Locke's life, and some phases in his character; and Lord King, notwithstanding the title of his work, seems to have made no effort at all to string them together in any order, or to combine with them such information as he could procure from other sources." Bourne's Life of John Locke.

Authoritative account, though considered unduly laudatory. The brothers were both eminent in English politics and diplomacy in the first half of the 19th century, Castlereagh being by far the more notable. The younger marquis had a long and eventful military career, having engaged in 25 battles between 1796 and 1814.

Burton, John Hill. Lives of Simon, lord Lovat and Duncan Forbes of Culloden, from original sources. 1847. Chapman.

Lord Lovat (1667?–1747) sided with the government in the Jacobite uprising of 1715, but with the rebels in 1745–46. He was captured at the battle of Culloden, tried for treason and executed. Forbes (1685–1747) was a Scottish judge and a warm supporter of the government.

"He gives...authorities which show an extent of research, among printed and unprinted materials, for which...we were not prepared...The value of his labours can only be acknowledged by those who, by having studied this portion of our history, can estimate the skill with which he has compressed so much into so small a compass." North British review, 1847.

Lowell, Charles Russell. 92 L956

Life and letters [ed.] by E. W. Emerson. 1907. Houghton.

Lowell (1835–64) was a nephew of the poet. At the outbreak of the Civil war he applied for a commission in the regular army. He showed genuine military ability and his commission to be brigadier-general was signed on the day that he was killed at the battle of Cedar Creek. To a singular degree everyone who came in contact with Lowell seems to have felt the fineness of his spirit. Mr Emerson prefaces the letters, many of which were written to his wife Josephine Shaw Lowell and to his friends Thomas Wentworth Higginson and John Murray Forbes, with a biographical sketch.

Unlike the usual lives of Luther which represent him chiefly as a theologian and defier of popes, this admirable biography treats him as a human being. Author has drawn largely for his material upon Luther's correspondence, in which he is revealed as a plain, earnest, sensible man with a childlike, religious faith and a keen sense of humor. Noted English geologist (1797–1875).

"The two volumes contain a vast mass of information which will be invaluable to the future historian of the progress of natural science during the nineteenth century, or to Lyell's future biographer; but his 'Life' as we understand the term, is not to be found in them...The notes are few and far between...the meagre fragments of personal narrative which occasionally head the chapters read like quotations from an indifferent article in a biographical dictionary...On the other hand, those who know Lyell's books will be delighted with his letters. He wrote in a good style...and he described what he saw and heard very graphically and well." Saturday review, 1882.

Hutton, Edward. Sigismondo Pandolfo Malatesta, lord of Rimini; a study of a 15th century Italian despot. 1906. Dent.

An excellent book, worthy to be read by every lover of good English. Mr Hutton has set himself to write fact as fiction, endeavoring to give an impression of the first part of the 15th century without using a single incident which is not authenticated. His subject is that strangest and yet most typical of Italian despots; and his mouthpiece is a certain Pietro Sanseverino, a wholly imaginary person, but one, nevertheless, who tells the story of his patron's life as seriously as Monsieur Yriarte himself has done, and certainly with greater accuracy. Condensed from Nation, 1906.

Sir Horace Mann (1701–86) was for 46 years British envoy at Florence. During this time he kept up a steady correspondence with his friend Horace Walpole.

"Lord Dover describes the letters on Mann's side as 'voluminous, but particularly devoid of interest, as they are written in a dry, heavy style, and consist almost entirely of trifling details of forgotten Florentine history'...Their contents are summarised in two volumes published by Dr. Doran...They abound in accounts of serenades, fêtes, masquerades, court ceremonial and Italian eccentricities." Dictionary of national biography.

Mansfield, Richard. 92 M343w

Wilstach, Paul. Richard Mansfield, the man and the actor. 1908. Scribner.

"Bibliography," p.485–490.

Mr Wilstach was associated with Mr Mansfield (1857–1907) for many years, was devoted to his interests and writes of him with an unwavering and self-evident partiality. Though packed with detail and somewhat disorderly in arrangement, the book succeeds in revealing his powerful personality and versatile genius, and affords glimpses, through the letters to Mrs Mansfield and his son, of a tender human side which was little known to the world.

Mansfield, Richard. 92 M343wi

Winter, William. Life and art of Richard Mansfield, with selections from his letters. 2v. 1910. Moffat.

"Worthy memorial of a brilliant actor by his trusted friend and critic. Volume 1 is devoted to the life, practically commencing with Mansfield's initial New York success in 1883; volume 2 takes up his important rôles in order. The book is authoritative in its statements of fact, sympathetic and just in its estimate of Mansfield's complex character and the nature and scope of his genius, and contains examples of felicitous description and penetrating analysis that rank it with Mr Winter's best critical work. The appendix contains a forty-three page chronology and a note on 'The gentle art of plagiarism,' referring to Paul Wilstach, whose interesting life of Mansfield, though fuller on the biographical side, will be critically superseded by this authorized biography. The illustrations consist mostly of portraits of Mansfield in his various characters." A. L. A. booklist, 1910.

"Catalogue of manuscripts in Margaret of Austria's library at Malines," p.330–334.

The story of her various courtships and marriages carries the reader into almost every country of western Europe. As regent of the Netherlands for her nephew, the emperor Charles V, she was able and successful; the "Ladies' Peace" of Cambray attests her ability as a diplomatist; the church of Brou, her skill as an architect; her patronage of Erasmus and the eulogies of Jean Lemaire de Belges, her literary appreciation and skill as a poet. "A book strangely ill-named. Anything more unconquered than the great Missouri it would be hard to find; and in what sense the career of a steamboat man who, for nearly sixty years, has experienced its snags, sand-bars, and floods, can be called a conquest of the river, it would be hard to say. The book is the story of Grant Marsh, who, beginning as a cabin-boy, in 1846, at the age of twelve, has sailed the Mississippi and its tributaries almost to the present hour. It is a picturesque and instructive record." Nation, 1910.

Mill, John Stuart. 92 M687m

Letters of John Stuart Mill; ed. with an introduction by H. S. R. Elliot. 2v. 1910. Longmans.

"Some notes on the private life of John Stuart Mill," by Mary Taylor, v.1, p.39–46.

The interest of this correspondence, which covers the period from 1829 to 1873, is threefold. The letters tell much about Mill's own character which his autobiography does not reveal, they throw light on some of the leading literary figures of his time, including Carlyle, Sterling and Bulwer, and they give a clear and direct impression of the public questions of that day in England.

Miller, Sanderson. 92 M695d

Dickins, Lilian, & Stanton, Mary, ed. Eighteenth-century correspondence; the letters of Deane Swift and others to Sanderson Miller, esq., of Radway. 1910. Murray.

Sanderson Miller was an English country gentleman with a reputation as an amateur architect and a capacity for friendship of which these letters are a faithful record. They seldom deal with public affairs but are largely occupied with architectural matters, in regard to which Miller's friends often appealed to him for advice. Prominent among the letters are those of Deane Swift, cousin and biographer of the great dean. Miller's replies have not been preserved and we thus get a curiously reflected portrait of the man as he appears in the minds of his friends.

"These recollections of one of last century's greatest personalities are set down with a certain naïveté, which however nowise detracts from their interest; and while they are very modestly put forward and do not for a moment claim to be a 'great book,' there is yet something Boswellian in their author's adoring attitude to Moltke." Outlook (London), 1907.

Motley, John Lothrop. 92 M941m

John Lothrop Motley and his family; further letters and records; ed. by his daughter and H. S. Mildmay. 1910. Lane.

"The most important letters of the historian of the Dutch Republic were published by George William Curtis [1889]...but a considerable remnant has been in the family archives, and some important letters have in the interval come to light. These, with numerous letters by Mrs. Motley and Miss Lily Motley, now Lady Harcourt, make up a very interesting volume. All the Motleys were good letter-writers, and the wife and daughter kept abreast of all literary and political activities of the head of the family. So this book, though frankly made up of scraps, has a certain continuity, and covers in a glancing fashion the greater part of Motley's public life." Nation, 1910.

Murat, Princess Caroline, afterward Mrs Garden. 92 M9712

My memoirs. 1910. Nash.

The memoirs of Princess Caroline, daughter of Prince Napoleon Murat and granddaughter of the king of Naples, have for their chief points of interest the Bonaparte family and the imperial court. Trivial but not without interest as a collection of the gossip of Paris and Camden place, with a bias against the empress Eugénie.

Napoleon I, emperor of the French. 92 N129nj

The Corsican; a diary of Napoleon's life in his own words [ed. by R. M. Johnston]. 1910. Houghton.

"Passages selected from letters, state papers and conversations, and arranged chronologically under the dates to which they refer, not under the dates of utterance. They form an interesting but incomplete and disconnected autobiography, but not a 'diary' as the sub-title states. Its value is lessened by the editor's failure to mention sources and to tell what versions have gone to make up composite entries, and the absence of context renders many passages vague. A work of little or no historical value, but of decided interest as a psychological study." A. L. A. booklist, 1911.

Napoleon I, emperor of the French. r92 N129na

Napoleon's letters to Josephine, 1796–1812; for the first time collected and translated, with notes social, historical and chronological, from contemporary sources by H. F. Hall. 1901. Dent.

These letters are neither new nor of much importance. The framework of the book is an elaborate diary of Napoleonic and European history from 1796 to 1814, in which the correspondence is inserted in batches. Between February 1797 and May 1800, no letters are available, and another complete vacuum reaches from August 1811 to the date of Josephine's death in 1814. The collection may be accepted as generally authentic. The topics of the letters are always the weather, health, clothes, presents, debts, grumblings, and other intimate personal details, the whole written in an unaffected good-natured style. The exhaustive notes are a delightful omnium gatherum of Napoleonic lore, but are often foreign to the context. Condensed from Spectator, 1902.

Abbott, John Stevens Cabot. History of Napoleon Bonaparte. 2v. 1883. Harper.

First published in 1855. Fully illustrated. Maps.

"This book has been read with more enthusiasm, and criticized with more severity, than perhaps any other life of Napoleon. The author was not simply an ardent, but a boundless, admirer of the emperor. His effort was to create an enthusiasm for his hero similar to that which he himself felt. He was not too particular in regard to his facts, but those which he made use of he arranged with such consummate skill as to captivate completely the judgment of the ignorant and the unwary." Adams's Manual of historical literature.

The work of Alice Freeman Palmer (1855–1902) was of historical importance in the development of education in America. She was a member of the Massachusetts State Board of Education and for three years dean of the Woman's Department of the University of Chicago. All these interests are fully treated in this biography, written by her husband, but they are subordinated to the intimate and penetrating study of Mrs Palmer as a woman.

With the exception of one or two points, Mr Wright's two volumes bring to light no detail of real biographic significance not to be found in Mr Benson's volume, and few not adduced in Mr Greenslet's earlier and briefer study. The reader could arise from the closest perusal of the two volumes with little sense of Pater's peculiar and charming idiosyncrasy. It is, in short, the failure of the "Boswellian" method in biography when applied by a man who is not a Boswell to a subject not a Johnson. Condensed from Nation, 1907.

Pattison, Mark. 92 P3142p

Memoirs. 1885. Macmillan.

Pattison (1813–84) was an English scholar and writer, tutor and examiner of Lincoln College, Oxford and later its rector.

"The book is one of deep and painful interest, the only one in existence that can be compared with Rousseau's 'Confessions' in the fidelity with which it lays bare the inmost secrets of the heart, but in which, unlike the 'Confessions,' the author does himself much less than justice. He gives a far less favourable impression of himself than any impartial outside observer would have done, and draws a portrait not so much of what he really was at the time of which he writes, as of what he seemed to himself through the morbid recollections of the past and the often not less morbid entries in his diary...In his 'Memoirs' he is no less unfair to those whom he disliked than to himself." Dictionary of national biography.

"The author has not merely read widely in the enormous mass of Petrarch literature, but has thoroughly familiarized herself with the original texts, including Latin works usually neglected, and generally has provided her own translations. She has shown tact in arrangement, and has chosen a form of expression at once sufficiently enthusiastic and self-effacing. It seems to us the best single work on the humanist poet in English, and not likely soon to be superseded." Nation, 1910.

Coolidge, Louis Arthur. An old-fashioned senator, Orville H. Platt, of Connecticut; the story of a life unselfishly devoted to the public service. 1910. Putnam.

Under the sympathetic hands of his biographer, whose tone is that of a fervent Republican, the story of Mr Platt's career in the Senate from 1879 to 1905 has become almost a history of national legislation for that period. Senator Platt was one of the last of our patriarchal statesmen, representing a kind of ancient severity and virtue, men of deeds not of words. For a score of years he spent himself devotedly upon matters of high public concern in which little individual glory was to be won. It was he who put the Patent office upon an independent basis. Of the cause of international copyright he made himself the champion and for years he served on the Indian committee. Condensed from Nation, 1910.

"Dr. Lee is one of the moving spirits of the Order of Corporate Reunion, which has for its object the reunion of the English church with Rome, and it is, perhaps, not unnatural that in writing of the one man who came next to effecting, and did for a time effect, the much-desired reconciliation, he should view everything too exclusively in the light of its bearing on his present aims...It results in the omission of many interesting and important facts, particularly those connected with his middle life." Spectator, 1888.

A contribution of prime importance to the history of the Kansas struggle and the Civil war. Memoirs, with special reference to secession and the Civil war; ed. by W. F. McCaleb, with introduction by G. P. Garrison. 1906. Neale.

Reagan (1818–1905) was a self-made man who rose to high rank under the ancien régime in the South and became the trusted adviser of Jefferson Davis. He was a man of unusually clear vision, of absolute honesty and few abiding prejudices. The main topics treated in his book are the writer's early life in Texas, the organization of the Confederacy at Montgomery, the Civil war as viewed by an active and efficient cabinet officer in Richmond, and the problems of reconstruction. The most interesting portion of the book is the plain unvarnished story of Reagan's hardships and early struggles. Renan, Ernest. 92 R337re

Recollections of my youth; tr. by C. B. Pitman and revised by Madame Renan. 1883. Chapman.

"His style is fair in both the senses in which we use the word—in that of being temperate and just, and in that of being without a flaw; and these Reminiscences of his younger years...are perhaps the most complete revelation of it...The first chapters ...are not the most vivid, though they contain a very interesting picture of the author's birthplace, the little dead town of Tréguier...It is when he comes to dip into his own spiritual history that M. Renan shows himself a masterly narrator...The chapters on the two seminaries in which he spent the first years of his residence in Paris, Saint Nicholas du Chardonnet and Saint Suplice, are full of the most acute notation of moral and intellectual conditions...He traces with singular art the process by which, young, simple, devout, dedicated to the church from his infancy...he found himself confronted with the fact that he could no longer be a Catholic." Henry James, in Atlantic monthly, 1883.

constant and usually in close personal relations...The book can hardly be described as a biography of Cecil Rhodes. It is rather a sketch of the more prominent phases of his public life, its aim being not to recount events, but to explain the part which Rhodes took in them, the motives that animated him, and the spirit in which he went about his work...It is fair and temperate. Scott, Sir George Gilbert. 92 S426

Scott (1811–78) was an eminent English architect, a leader in the Gothic revival. He was employed in restoring many old English churches, notably Westminster abbey and Ely cathedral. It is with this phase of his work rather than with the erection of new churches, public buildings, etc. that these recollections are concerned.

The manuscript of his "Memories" was offered to Lockhart, who, from some motive of delicacy, did not use it, and it has remained in the possession of Mr Skene's descendants ever since. A great-grandson now publishes it, with an introduction and useful notes. While the pages reveal nothing of historical importance, they add greatly to an appreciation of Scott's character.

"The story of her life is a simple tale as regards outward circumstances. No striking incidents, no remarkable occurrences will be found in it, but the gradual unfolding and ripening amid congenial surroundings of a true and beautiful soul, a clear and refined intellect, and a singularly sympathetic social nature." Editor.

Sharp, Mrs Elizabeth Amelia (Sharp). William Sharp (Fiona Macleod); a memoir; comp. by his wife. 1910. Duffield.

"Whilst she reveals the very inner ego of a complex, and to the outsider most bewildering, personality, she never draws the veil from the sanctuary of his home life... She chronicles the outer events of William Sharp's extraordinary career, bringing out the results of the strange blend of nationalities in him, which, to quote the words of a friend, made him a 'Viking in build, a Scandinavian in cast of mind, and a Celt in heart and spirit;' noting the strong influence Nature exercised over him from the first, and dwelling on the deep undercurrent of mysticism that was to the end of his life one of the most potent elements of his character." Outlook (London), 1910.

Shaw, George Bernard. 92 S534c

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith. George Bernard Shaw. 1909. Lane.

"Quite as much a picture of Mr. Chesterton as a study of Mr. Shaw. The two-edged quality of criticism has never made a more striking or amusing display of itself than in this analysis of the supposedly...Shavian...characteristics...As to the plan and scope of the book, it begins with a characteristic assertion: 'Most people either say that they agree with Bernard Shaw or that they do not understand him. I am the only person who understands him, and I do not agree with him.' Then follow...chapters on Mr. Shaw as an Irishman, as a Puritan, and as a Progressive; but the greater part of the book is devoted to 'The Critic,' 'The Dramatist,' and 'The Philosopher.' Hence it is, as was natural, more a study of the writer than of the man." Dial, 1909.

Shaw, George Bernard. 92 S534h

Henderson, Archibald, b. 1877. George Bernard Shaw; his life and works; a critical biography (authorized). 1911. Hurst.

Contains a genealogical chart of the Shaw family.

Though fulsome in its admiration and somewhat disfigured by imposing literary allusions, French phrases and a journalistic exuberance, this 500-page biography is a document of value. It brings together as many of the facts about Mr Shaw's life, character and opinions as he wishes to be generally known. There is no other authority (1911) for the interesting period of his childhood in Dublin, when the love of music seems to have been his first interest, nor has so much been told before of his early literary work in London, of the genesis of the Fabian Society and of his journalistic career. Contains numerous and interesting illustrations.

Shaw, George Bernard. 92 S534j

Jackson, Holbrook. Bernard Shaw. 1907. Richards.

Contents: The man.—The Fabian.—The playwright.—The philosopher.

This little book will afford great satisfaction to the admirers of Bernard Shaw; for the author is an enthusiastic disciple of that brilliant but erratic propagandist. It is cleverly written in a style that often suggests what the faithful call the Shavian attitude and manner, gives an apparently authoritative summary of his various theories, political and the like, and furnishes some significant facts which may help to account for a good many of them. Condensed from Nation, 1907.

The authority for the life of this Irish dramatist and politician (1791–1851).

"Sheil played a distinguished, if not a decisive, part in the history of his times. He was amongst the foremost of Irish tribunes, and was in the House of Commons a successful speaker, of a peculiar kind. In our Clubs and in London society his caustic tone and sparkling sayings were familiar to many, while his literary accomplishments commended him to the regard of several who had no taste for Irish agitation." Athenæum, 1855.

Shelley, Percy Bysshe. 92 S545

Letters; collected and ed. by Roger Ingpen. 2v. 1909. Pitman.

"A large proportion of the letters have no literary and little biographical value, but collectively they all have an importance as forming a link in a wonderful self-revelation of an abnormal personality...Mr. Ingpen's notes are an invaluable commentary on the events and persons mentioned in the letters." Outlook (London), 1909.

from which to write the poet's biography. The result was a surprise and a disappointment. Hogg took unwarrantable liberties with his materials, and Shelley's representatives, fearing that the prosecution of the work would result in stereotyping a caricature, withdrew the documents on which Hogg had depended for continuing it.

"Hogg's offences as a biographer are grave...Yet how much less we should have known of the youthful Shelley if Hogg had not written...The book is indispensable for one who would know Shelley; and yet for one who would know Shelley fully and aright it is wholly insufficient. It is a fragment not only in the sense that it tells no more than a portion of the story; it is fragmentary also in its presentation of Shelley's character." Edward Dowden, in introduction.

Peacock, Thomas Love. Memoirs of Shelley, with Shelley's letters to Peacock; ed. by H. F. B. Brett-Smith. 1909. Frowde.

Appeared first in "Fraser's magazine," v.57–62, June 1858–March 1862.

Among the memorabilia of Shelley's friends the memoirs which Thomas Love Peacock contributed to the pages of "Fraser's magazine" will always hold an important place. These memoirs have only once been reprinted and have been for many years out of print. Mr Brett-Smith's introduction gives an account of Peacock's association with Shelley. Peacock's record contains many particulars that are not to be found in other accounts of Shelley, but in his desire for impartiality he sometimes appears to fail in sympathy. As a clear and circumstantial chronicle of the chief events in the poet's life it is especially valuable. Condensed from Outlook (London), 1910.

Smith, George Barnett. Shelley; a critical biography. 1877. Douglas.

"Mr. Smith undertakes to realise to us what Shelley was as a man and as a writer, introducing the leading biographical facts more by way of illustration than of regular narrative. This design is carried out with a fair amount of consistency, and a moderate instalment of success; and it was worth trying, for one cannot say that the same sort of treatment has as yet been applied, in any substantial form, to the career of Shelley ...Mr. Smith tells us a few things...which are new...others which are new without the stamp of truth; and some which are decidedly erroneous." *W. "Following his usual custom, Mr. Sichel has written the history not only of Sheridan but of his times, and has presented us with...the most complete portrait as yet given to the world of that strange genius...The book as a whole is a splendid performance, a history on the grand scale of the life and times of a man whose interest is imperishable." Spectator, 1910.

Kerr, Winfield Scott. John Sherman; his life and public services. 2v. 1908. Sherman.

"As a careful and intelligent compilation, Mr. Kerr's work will hardly need to be done over again, but the student of American history will not find in it anything new; while the general sketch of events, though making fully a third of the bulk, is quite without distinction. The pervading tone, moreover, is persistently eulogistic, though not offensively so; and one looks in vain for any critical appraisal of Sherman's notable public services. On the whole, the book does not displace the briefer and more discriminating volume by Theodore E. Burton [92 S5531b]." Nation, 1908.

Greville, Fulke, baron Brooke. Life of Sir Philip Sidney, etc., first published 1652, with an introduction by Nowell Smith. 1907. Clarendon Press.

As a memorial of friendship it is worthy of a place among the classics of human history. It is the source of the classical story of Sidney's death; it is the best likeness of the young "president of learning and chivalry" which has been left us by a contemporary; and it is a remarkable testimony by an experienced statesman to the greatness of Elizabeth's government. The whole work commands admiration as an archaic but noble expression of the same spirit of chivalry that animated Sidney and Spenser. Condensed from Croll's Works of Fulke Greville.

The autobiography extends only through the year 1863.

"It requires a very clear conscience and perfect guilelessness to expose one's self as he has done; but having done it the reader sees an earnest man of complete purity, discharging his daily duty with singleness of purpose, and reaching fame by conscientious and intelligent exercise of brain and hand. In 1868 he came to America and was for two years professor in Cornell University. Thence he went to Toronto, where the last 40 years of his life were spent. He was a reasonable and constant critic of public events, and of this his reminiscences give abundant evidence. Among the topics discussed are American Civil war times, the Manchester school of political economy and its leaders, visits to Jamaica, Europe, Washington and the Northwest, and Canadian politics.

Tributes from friends and colleagues to the memory of Dr Spofford, librarian of Congress, 1864–97.

Staël-Holstein, Anne Louise Germaine (Necker), baronne de. 92 S778

Ten years' exile; or, Memoirs of that interesting period of the life of the baroness de Staël-Holstein, written by herself, during the years 1810-13, and now first published from the original ms. by her son; tr. from the French. 1821. Collins.

Fragmentary memoirs, covering the years 1800–04 and 1810–12. Mme de Staël was exiled because of her open hostility to Napoleon. She first visited Germany, where she made the acquaintance of Schiller and Goethe, then Italy, obtaining there the materials for her famous novel "Corinne," and later traveled in Austria, Russia, Sweden and England.

Staël-Holstein, Anne Louise Germaine (Necker), baronne de. 92 S778n

Nolde, Elisabeth, baronne de, ed. Madame de Staël and Benjamin Constant; unpublished letters, together with other mementos from the papers left by Mme Charlotte de Constant; tr. from the French by Charlotte Harwood. 1907. Putnam.

Baronne de Nolde, who is the great-granddaughter of Mme de Constant, furnishes the necessary connecting narrative to the letters.

"They are interesting and characteristic, though they do not affect the judgment which the world has long since delivered upon the two famous writers." Outlook (London), 1907.

Stanhope, Lady Hester Lucy. 92 S786r

Roundell, Mrs Julia Anne Elizabeth (Tollemache). Lady Hester Stanhope. 1909. Murray.

"We follow the eccentric career of Lady Hester Stanhope from the time when she shone in English political circles—the favorite niece of Pitt—on to the amazing Eastern life and adventures which give her such special claims to remembrance...The account of her residence at Djoun among the Syrians, who regarded her with awe-struck wonder, reads rather like some romantic imagination than a sober narrative of fact...Mrs. Roundell has drawn largely on the memoirs of Dr. Meryon, for years resident physician of the brilliant and fantastic lady, but she has also turned to interesting foreign sources." Outlook (London), 1910.

Stanley, Sir Henry Morton. 92 S7872

Autobiography; ed. by his wife, Dorothy Stanley. 1909. Houghton.

Sir Henry Stanley (1841–1904) prepared the greater part of this work, the supplementary narrative being made up from his letters, diaries, etc. It is an extraordinary life-record, beginning in the workhouse, where he was cruelly treated, continuing in a hand-to-mouth existence, a voyage to America, soldier life in the Civil war, the ups and downs of journalism, and finally, the African explorations which made him famous.

Stanley, William Ford. 92 S789s

William Ford Stanley; his life and work; ed. by Richard Inwards. 1911. Lockwood.

Life and letters of E. C. Stedman, by Laura Stedman and G. M. Gould. 2v. 1910. Moffat.

"Bibliography," v.2, p.613–654.

These portly volumes reveal an exceedingly manly, kindly, alert and engaging personality. They are sure to be of great service to close students of Mr Stedman's career and of the period of which he was probably the most distinguished poet and critic.

Steiner, Edward Alfred. 92 S822

Against the current; simple chapters from a complex life. 1910. Revell.

Author's early life was lived in a little Hungarian town where Magyar, Slav, German and Jew lived in close proximity, and where racial and religious questions were matters of most vital interest. He describes some of the scenes which stand out most clearly from this background of his early boyhood and which influenced him in his later development.

Stephen, Sir Leslie. 92 S8282

Life and letters; by F. W. Maitland. 1906. Duckworth.

Sir Leslie Stephen (1832–1904) was preëminent as a critic, thinker and philosopher and as editor of the "Dictionary of national biography." Mr Maitland, who was Stephen's intimate friend for many years and his kinsman by marriage, tells with much detail the story of his life and brings together many of his letters. One of the most interesting chapters is devoted to Stephen's first visit to the United States, as some of the best letters are written to his American friends, notably Charles Eliot Norton, James Russell Lowell and Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Stephens, Alexander Hamilton. 92 S832

Stevenson, Robert Louis. 92 S8481z

Letters; ed. by Sidney Colvin. 4v. 1911. Scribner.

Biographical edition.

These four volumes constitute a definitive edition of Stevenson's correspondence. Here the two series, "Vailima letters" and "Letters to his family and friends," are united and set in chronological order, with the addition of some 150 new letters. The result is a comprehensive view of Stevenson's life and interests as revealed in his letters. The new letters relate for the most part to his early life and the correspondents of this fresh instalment are mainly Sidney Colvin, Mrs Sitwell, W. E. Henley, and the writer's parents.

Stevenson, Robert Louis. 92 S848m

Moors, H. J. With Stevenson in Samoa. 1910. Small.

These memoirs, while adding little of importance to our knowledge of Stevenson's character, are distinctly interesting because of the angle from which they are written. The author, a shopkeeper, dealer in real estate, and local politician in Samoa, had an interest in his subject which was rather neighborly than literary. Book bears witness to the friendliest intimacy and to the fact that Stevenson was able to mix familiarly with all sorts of men on their own ground. Condensed from Nation, 1910.

Stowe, Charles Edward, & Stowe, L. B. Harriet Beecher Stowe; the story of her life, by her son and her grandson. 1911. Houghton.

"For readers who wish an abundance of personal details, old-fashioned summaries of writings and speeches, and a general tone of unquestioning approval, the book should prove eminently acceptable...Unfortunately, however, for the historian, Mr. Shotwell's point of view is so exclusively that of Sumner that the critical value of the work is slight." Nation, 1910.

Talleyrand-Périgord, Dorothée (von Biron), duchesse de. 92 T1612

The duchesse de Dino was the niece of Talleyrand, who was during the first three years of these memoirs ambassador in London. She observed with keen sense the court world of which she formed a part, and her diary yields some striking portraits of eminent people.

Talour de la Cartrie, Toussaint-Ambroise, comte de la Villenière. 92 T166

A. Pichot and other hands. 1906. Lane.

The result of the painstaking investigations of M. Pichot, one of the most skilful unravelers of historical problems connected with the revolution in France, establishes the genuineness of these memoirs and their substantial accuracy beyond reasonable doubt. Their interest is great and they have considerable historic value, although the author may not have played a preponderant rôle in the military events he describes. The publisher's account of the discovery of the manuscript is one of the romances of publishing. Condensed from Nation, 1906.

He was not only one of the first to give New Yorkers their musical education, but he soon extended his mission to a number of other cities by establishing his musical "highway," and finally his orchestra in Chicago. In the annals of music there are few chapters so interesting as those in which Mrs Thomas relates how the great conductor gradually enlisted the sympathies of the captains of industry in that city, persuading them, with the aid of his friends to erect for him a special building, Orchestra hall. Condensed from Nation, 1911.

In spite of drawbacks, a valuable and in many ways an illuminating biography. Mr Maude is an Englishman who received part of his education in Moscow and who lived for than 20 years in Russia, becoming acquainted with Tolstoï in 1887. He more than atones for his inadequacy as a literary critic by the understanding with which he portrays Tolstoï's personality. He writes with ease and simplicity and with an abundance of concrete illustration. Considerable portions of the work have been revised by the countess Tolstoï or by Tolstoï himself, so that its accuracy may be generally relied on. Condensed from Nation, 1911.

The genial spirit of the immortal fun-maker himself has touched the hundred pages of reminiscence with characteristic gaiety, and it is a vivid picture one gets, not simply of Mark Twain, but of a rare friendship between two richly endowed natures. v.1. 1837–43.
v.3. 1854–61.

The object of the publication, the editors tell us, is not to supply matter to the historical student, but to present the nation with a portrait of Queen Victoria. With this aim such letters have been selected as exhibit the development of the queen's character, her political relations with her ministers, and her domestic relations with her husband and the members of her large family at home and on the continent. Especially interesting are the lights thrown on the four men who formed her select body-guard, so to speak—Lord Melbourne, her uncle Leopold, king of the Belgians and his former physician and secretary, Baron Stockmar, and Prince Albert. Condensed from Saturday review, 1907.

Mein leben. 2v. 1911.

Wagner, Richard. 92 W134w
My life; authorized translation from the German. 2v. 1911. Dodd.

This autobiography was privately printed in 1871 and the half dozen copies given to intimate friends, republication for the world at large being deferred till years after Wagner's death. "Mein leben" closes with the year 1864, but, though a torso, it takes its place at once among the world's great autobiographies. It is very full in regard to Wagner's childhood and youth and much of it is devoted to a narrative of the ill luck which pursued him, through the greater part of his career, because of his unfortunate determination to be a composer. The author tells a plain tale sparing himself no more than others when occasion for censure arrives. He gives glimpses into the workshop of his genius and throws a flood of light on the musical conditions of his time in most European countries; and finally, what many readers will relish most, there are many comments on great musicians who befriended or opposed him—Liszt, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Berlioz, Meyerbeer, Bülow, Saint-Saëns and a host of others. Condensed from Nation, 1911.

Wagner, Richard. 92 W134ne
Neumann, Angelo. Erinnerungen an Richard Wagner. 1907.

The most important biographic contribution to musical literature since the beginning of the century, with the exception of Wagner's Letters to Frau Wesendonck. It contains a large number of the master's letters which have never before been printed, and it gives so many interesting glimpses of life behind the scenes—both literally and figuratively—that in a short time it has reached its fourth edition. Neumann began his career as a baritone, 50 years ago. He became a Wagner enthusiast during the Vienna concerts in 1862 and in 1876 he became joint manager, with August Förster, of the Leipzig Stadttheater, and from that time on he played a rôle in the life of Wagner, the importance of which has heretofore been known to few. The Leipzig performances were a brilliant success, and so were those Neumann gave at the Victoria Theatre in Berlin. Neumann afterward gained Wagner's consent for his project of a traveling Wagner theatre. The adventures which befell them in Paris, London, and the other European cities down to Italy take up the remaining pages of Neumann's reminiscences. Condensed from Nation, 1907.

The author, personal friend and physician of John Wesley, was chosen by him as one of his literary executors. A dispute arose in regard to the custody of Wesley's papers which were in Whitehead's possession, and the other two executors, Henry Moore and Thomas Coke, published a life without having had access to them.

"No higher tribute can be paid to the excellence of Whitehead's work than the constant use which Moore makes of it, frequently, and without acknowledgment, adopting its language, though criticisms of Whitehead are not spared." Dictionary of national biography.
